An Eyeful of Fashion

This season designers are winking at convention with the début of offbeat eye-wear. "I added signature details like zippers and studs," says Alexander Wang of his playful shades. Former Oliver Peoples exec Adam Mendelsohn and his wife, Kara, launched KBL, a line of aviators in punchy hues. Also on our radar: cool classics from Jason Wu, colorful styles from Diane von Furstenberg, sporty specs from Hogan, and sleek, retro frames from Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen's the Row.

GLOW TIME

Makeup pro Scott Barnes has worked his magic on Mariska Hargitay and Jennifer Lopez, who graces the cover of his new book, About Face. Here's his strategy for keeping your skin luminous throughout the winter.

1. SCRUB "Be super-careful when exfoliating your face," says Barnes. "Use products with round granules rather than sharp bits that will cut the skin. (Olay makes a gentle one.) Delicately work from the jaw line up in a circular motion; rinse."

2. MOISTURIZE "Start with an eye cream (I swear by La Prairie's Skin Caviar) around the eye bone (not close to the eye—you can block your tear ducts). Use a heavy moisturizer at night and a lighter one for day, and don't forget the neck."

3. BRONZE "Starting off with a clean face, apply bronzing powder to temples, jawbone, cheekbones, and into the hairline, leaving the center of the face open. No powder around laugh lines, nose, or eyes—it adds darkness and ages you. Add a pretty touch of shimmer with my bronzing lotion."
